A 25-minute video can go viral. How?

3 Reasons:

The Hook

The Characters

The Washroom

The Hook

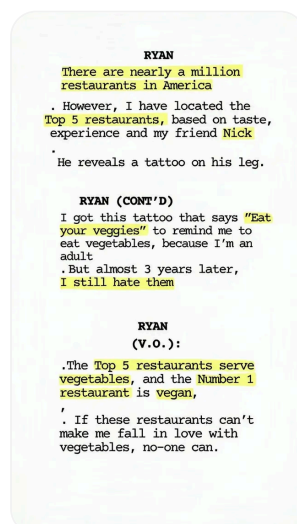

Ryan is unique with his hooks.

Most YouTubers rely on sudden cuts and a dozen events from the future.

Every sentence of the hook in this video is:

- A detail about Ryan's life.
- A promise
- A fact

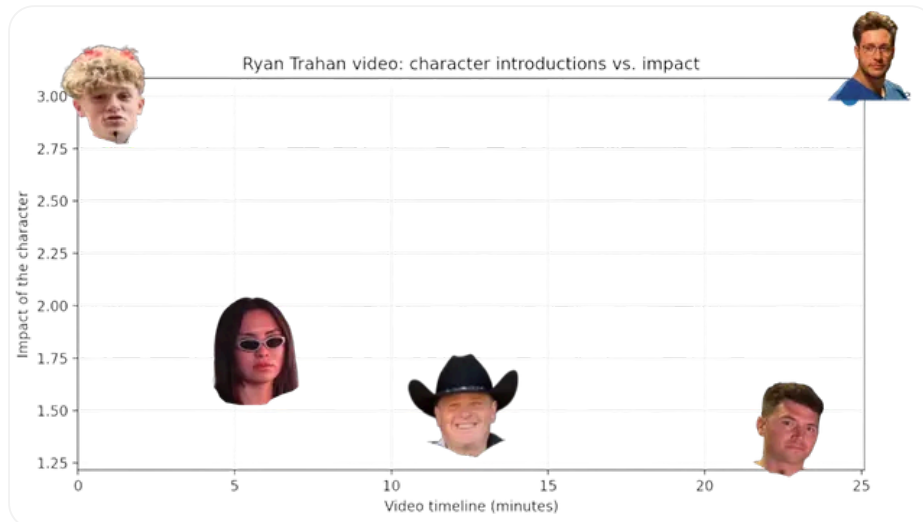

As seen in the highlighted text from the hook:

The Character Introductions:

The characters are introduced in a way that the video doesn't become boring. Every character has a particular impact and that keeps the audience engaged. Notice that the first and the last character introductions hold the highest retention/engagement.

The Washroom

- There was totally 0 need of keeping the washroom footage in the video.
- This is what makes Ryan unique.
- He makes non-living things come alive.
- He did the same with 'iced coffee' in his penny series.

Bonus: Note that the story of this video, apart from being a vlog, follows the classic rule of writing a good story.

The Goal and the Obstacle rule.

Protagonist (Ryan) has a Goal(eat veggies), but the Obstacle is that he hates them.

The story ends when the protagonist overcomes the obstacle. So, Ryan finally eats the veggies in end of the video.
